The Home Office

Allan worked for me at the Home Office for a period of seven months. I held the role of Director of Shared Services with responsibility for all IT delivery, Estates management, Shared Service Transactional Programmes and Information Management with a total yearly spend in excess of £400m.

I employed Allan to lead a transformation programme to radically improve delivery within a 300 strong IT department. He successfully managed both key stakeholders and consultants/internal staff working on the programme.

I found Allan strategically sound, analytically thorough with a good communication style. He was well liked and well respected despite having to deliver sometimes difficult messages. I would happily recommend him for other leadership roles and would have no hesitation in employing him in the future.
